ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system that inserts subscriber identification information includes, in a preferred embodiment, a system with a memory for storing subscriber identification information and a 5   processor configured to insert the subscriber identification information into a media presentation to improve traceability of copied presentations to a subscriber.